

SUMMARY STATEMENT

Idaho Power v. New Energy, Docket No. 40882-2013

The Idaho Supreme Court affirmed the order of the Public Utilities Commission. This is an appeal from an order of the Public Utilities Commission holding that it had jurisdiction to decide whether the force majeure clauses in the Appellants' contracts with the Idaho Power Company excused them from their contractual obligations to have their power generation facilities constructed and in operation by specified dates in order to sell electricity to the Company. We affirm the order of the Commission.
