

SUMMARY STATEMENT

Jane Doe I and John Doe I v. Jane Doe (2019-23), Docket No. 47250

The Idaho Supreme Court affirmed the magistrate court's order terminating a mother's parental rights as to her child. The Court explained that there was substantial and competent evidence supporting the magistrate court's factual findings that Mother's conduct met the definitions of abandonment and neglect set forth in sections 16-2002(5) and 16-1602(31) of the Idaho Code, and that termination of Mother's parental rights was in the child's best interests.
