

SUMMARY STATEMENT

State v. Jordan David Daily

Docket No. 45252

In this case arising out of Nez Perce County, the Court of Appeals reversed the district court's decision granting Jordan David Daily's motion to suppress. After observing Daily commit a number of traffic offenses, an officer conducted a traffic stop. A subsequent records check revealed that Daily had an outstanding warrant for failing to appear. Daily was arrested on the warrant. Because there was an open container in the center console, the officers searched Daily's car, including the glove box. The search of the glove box revealed cash, a scale, and a pouch with a spoon inside. Daily was charged with possession of a controlled substance and possession of drug paraphernalia. Daily filed a motion to suppress, which the district court granted. The State filed a motion for reconsideration, which the district court denied. The State appealed. The Court of Appeals reversed, holding that the search of the glove box was covered within the automobile exception to the warrant requirement as the scope of that exception has been defined in United States v. Ross, 456 U.S. 798 (1982) and Wyoming v. Houghton, 526 U.S. 295 (1999).
