

SUMMARY STATEMENT

State v. Partee

Docket No. 45635

The Idaho Supreme Court vacated and remanded the district court's order denying Gary C. Partee's motion in limine. Accordingly, the Court vacated Partee's conviction for delivery of methamphetamine. Before trial, Partee moved to exclude statements he made to law enforcement officers during an interview that was part of a confidential informant agreement. The district court denied his motion. The Court held that this informant agreement was ambiguous due to its imprecise use of the word "immunity." The Court remanded the case to the district court for a factual determination of the intent of the parties at the time they entered into the agreement.
